THEME

How To Promote Diversity and Inclusion in Physical Education and Sport, and Beyond.

We have recognized the importance of an intercultural society with various forms of social and cultural diversities and inclusions. Still, there is scope to explore innovative forms of diversities and inclusions in educational practices and research within the context of physical education and sport, both inside and outside of schools. This conference aims to identify specific issues and solutions from both theoretical and practical perspectives and address the creation of an intercultural society in and through physical education and sport.
